

Project Update

Weekly Update

July 11, 2011

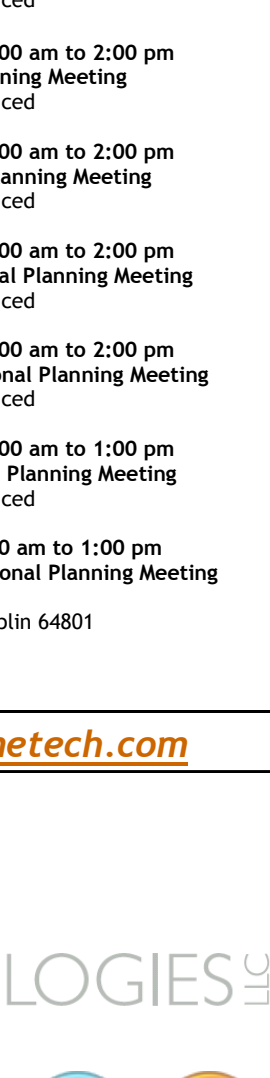

Sedalia, Warsaw, and Linn are where you will find the Sho-Me Mo crews working this week. With one crew starting in Warsaw and the other in Sedalia, the two have been working toward each other and have managed to install 21.1 miles of innerduct. Another crew is working the Linn to Jefferson City project and had installed approximately 1,250 feet of innerduct at the end of last week. This week will also bring construction of fiber into some of the Community Anchor Institutions. We hope to be able to post more pictures in the upcoming weeks.

In other news, MoBroadbandNow, a group we have discussed from time to time, is hosting more community meetings. See the article below for more information. ### MoBroadbandNow: Regional Technology Planning Meetings, Round 2

Back in the spring, the group MoBroadbandNow, an initiative started by Governor Jay Nixon, hosted regional technology planning meetings around the state. The meetings were held with each of the 19 Regional Planning Commissions in the state. The first meeting was to educate and to assign the participants to teams who then focused on a particular sector. Since the first meeting, the teams have performed surveys, conducted research, and compiled data in order to identify any issues or opportunities in their region. It is now time to have a second round of meetings to present and discuss those findings. The overall mission of this project is to improve the broadband opportunities for Missouri residents. Below is a list of those upcoming meetings. Not all information is listed yet and we will try to keep you updated as the information becomes available.
